CLEOPATRA POEMS.

The authors of these poems served in the war of 1861-1865—one in the army and the other in the navy of the United States. Gen. Wm. H. Little, one of the dead at Chickamauga, wrote the follow-

ANTONY TO CLEOPATRA. am dying, Egypt, dying ! Ebbs the crimson life-tide fast, and the dark Plutonian stadows Gather on the evening blast, Let thine arm, O Queen, support me,

Hush thy sobs, and bow thine ear And listen to the great heart secrets, Thou, and thou slone must hear. Thou, my scarred and veteran legions, Bear their eagles high no more, l'hou, my wrecked and shatter'd galley Strew dark Actium's fatal shore, tho' no glittering guard surround me Prompt to do their master's will, must perish like a Roman-Die a great Triumvir still. et not Cœsar's servile minions

Mock the iton thus laid low; T was no foeman's band that slew him "I was his own that struck the blow Here, then, pillowed on thy bosom, Ere his star fades quite away, Him who, drunk with thy caresses,

Madly flung a world away. should the base and pleblan rabble Dare assail my tame at Rome, Where the noble spouse, Octavia, Weeps within her widowed home; eck her, say the gods have told me,

Altars, augurs, circling wings, That her blood with mine commingled Shall yet mount the throne of kings. And for thee, star-eyed Egyptian, Glorious sorceress of the Nile, Light my path to stygian horrors With the splendor of thy smile. Give the Casar crown and arches, Let his brow the hure! twine, I can scorn the Scinate's triumpla, Triumping in a love like thine.

am dying, Egypt, dying, Hark! the insuiting foeman's cry; They are coming -quick, my falcalon!
Let me front them ere I die.
Ah, no more amid the battle
Shall my heart exulting swell;
Isis and Osiris guarded thee—
Cleopatra—Rome—farewell.

Thomas S. Collier, of New Londo conn., wrote the following answer to

Gen. Lyttle's poem, and it was published in the New York Mail, Feb. 7, 1872 CLEOPATRA DYING. Golden glows the sluggish Nile

Purple flame crown Spring and temple, Lights up every ancient pile, Where the old gods now are sleeping. Isls and Osiris great, Guard me—help me—give me courage Like a Queen to neet my fate.

I am dying, Egypt, dying," Let the Casar's army come—
I will cheat him of bis glory,
Though beyond the Styx I roam.
Shall he drag this beauty with him,
While this crowd his triumph sings?
No, no, never! I will show him
What lies in the blood of kings.

Though he holds the golden sceptre, Rule the Pharoah's sunny land, Where old Nilus rolls resistless, Through the sweeps of silvery sand He shall never say I met him, Fawning, abject, like a slave— I wai foil him, though to do it I must cross the Stygian wave,

Oh, my hero, sleeping, sleeping— Shall I meet you on the shore Of Plutonian shadows? Shall we In death meet and love once more? see, I follow in your footsteps— Scorn the Cresar and his might— For your love I will b p boldly Into realms of deat! and night.

Down below the derect sinking, Fades Appollo's be l'liant car, And from out the distant azure, Breaks the bright gleam of a star, Venus, queen of Loye and Heauty, Welcome me to death's embrace, Dying—free, proud and triumphant, The last sovereign of my race.

Dying! dying! I am coming,
O, my hero to your arms,
You will welcome me, I know it—
Guard me from all rude alarms.
Hark! I hear the logious coming,
Hear their cries of triumps swell,
But aread Cassa deed Lines. But, proud Cæsar, dead I scorn you, Egypt—Autony—farewell.

The Christian at Work.

Twoold puzzle apegan, a Hindoo a Turk. To solve this nice question in morals, why is it that eminent Christians at work Get up such unchristianly quarrels?

That Satan finds tasks for the idle 'tis true But with Christians at work this has noth They are busy enough to be quiet.

Their business in life is important indeed, And save human souls from the burning. Then how can these men in their lofty cares Find time to sling mud at each other?
